

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for depositing a layer of foamed plastic material on a roof surface and along a path thereon comprises controlling the movement of a spray applicator along the path such that the rate of movement of the applicator varies for a layer of foamed plastic material deposited on the roof surface to slope relative thereto along the path.